5 key principles

The principles underpin our work to achieve outcomes, objectives and actions

- 1 Authentic participation by people with a lived experience will underpin our work.
- 2 A holistic approach based on social determinants of health will shape our services.
- 3 Frameworks that support matching people to the intervention level that best meets their needs will direct our service delivery:
 - Stepped care for mental health services;
 - Lifespan for suicide prevention services; and
 - Queensland Alcohol and Other Drug Treatment Service Delivery Framework for alcohol and other drug treatment services.
- 4 Effective communication and strong collaboration will strengthen all we do.
- 5 We value equity, respond effectively to diversity and work towards social justice.

10 Long-term outcomes

Together we seek to build a community in Brisbane North where people:

3 are in charge of their own recovery, and services and supports respond to what they need

5 know about and are connected to the right services and supports at the right time, and in the right place

7 are understood holistically so that they can be connected to broader health and community services that address social determinants of health

9 with a lived experience contribute their experience to inform services and supports and drive service innovation and quality improvement, as part of an evidence-informed approach

1 have the resources and supports to create and maintain healthy meaningful lives

2 are free from stigma and discrimination

4 achieve their desired outcomes, assisted by services and supports when needed

6 seamlessly access different services and supports as their needs change

8 with a lived experience are actively involved in all levels of policy, planning, delivery and evaluation

10 have confidence in services and supports that are appropriately resourced, work collaboratively, and maintain a stable, skilled workforce, including peers and carers.

12 Activities or initiatives

with positive community impact in the past year

A Planning for Wellbeing Lived Experience Representative wrote a submission to the Queensland Parliamentary Inquiry into Mental Health, on behalf of the Peer Participation in Mental Health Services (PPiMS) Network. Following the Inquiry, the Queensland Government has endorsed several recommendations to promote lived experience engagement going forward.

The Institute for Urban Indigenous Health integrated mental health into their social and emotional wellbeing program. This means that their System of Care is less fragmented and more holistic for consumers to experience as a part of their broader health needs.

The Carer Gateway

is a federally funded early intervention program that aims to support, refer, empower and build the capacity of unpaid carers in our region. Many residents have accessed the program, which has led to them receiving counselling, coaching and peer group support.

The Integrated Mental Health Hubs

across the region have implemented the Equally Well initiative with their partnering organisations. The initiative has directly improved and supported the physical health needs of people living with mental illness, which will likely contribute to longer life expectancy for this group.

The Brisbane MIND program was expanded to provide mental health services to residents who were impacted by the February 2022 floods. These programs have enabled consumers to address current stressors and work through existing trauma.

The National Mental Health Services Planning Framework

has enabled key local and state mental health planners to better understand the gaps and service needs in the Brisbane North mental health system. In future, this will be expanded upon in our comprehensive regional plan.

The national Head to Health Phone Service was launched. It provides an assessment and navigation pathway for people in Brisbane North in need of mental health support. In the future, referral pathways and local service integration will continue to be developed, to ensure that people receive the right care for their needs.

World Wellness Group

has continued to provide culturally responsive mental health services to culturally and linguistically diverse community members in Brisbane North. To continue improving service access and referral pathways, the organisation plans to focus on working more closely with GPs.

The Brisbane North Safe Spaces

network was launched. Safe Spaces are peer-led, after-hours services that provide an alternative to the emergency department for people experiencing distress or suicidal thoughts. The network will seek to expand its reach to other local areas in the future.

Metro North Mental Health

launched their suicide, self-harm and overdose prevention plan for 2022-24, known as SPIRES. It focuses on improving their services' ability to recognise and respond to people presenting with these concerns. Going forward, all Metro North Mental Health staff will be trained in SPIRES, as part of an ongoing commitment to improved service delivery, safety and healing.

The Regional Youth Advisory Group

began their Lived Experience Engagement Project, which involves young people working alongside youth services to improve services. Community consultation was undertaken, and the next phase will be to create a practical tool for embedding youth lived experience participation in services.

A clinical supervision exchange program for alcohol and other drug (AOD) workers was implemented as part of a broader body of research. The program was found to be an effective and valuable strategy for increasing access to high-quality clinical supervision for the AOD workforce.
